Musical-Comedy at

Stock Show Very Good

The Thirst for Power

I wasn't there in person but interviewed enough people of varied tastes who were to report that the musical-comedy "Guys and Gals" which opened at the Third District Stock Show last night is a smash hit.

Its people can sing, the dancers can dance—and the comedian is one of America's best. The show includes authentic stars from the movies, the stage, and the phonograph recording companies.

Solid audience support is deserved for such an entertainment when it drops in on this city of less than 10,000. Many a Hope family has driven to Little Rock and Dallas to see stage shows that weren't as good.

I say that when the Stock Show management, with all the troubles that go into the making of an agricultural fair, piles on top of them the additional risk of underwriting a good stage entertainment the public ought to know about it, which it now does; and ought to respond, which it will.

High-priced music and musical shows require capacity crowds to justify the financial risk of appearing in our size town. Remember the ice show at the Coliseum last year? Everyone raved about it.

Give your confidence to each visiting stage show and perhaps Hope will have more of them in time to come.

Editor's Note: I should explain that the reason a couple of us missed Opening Night was that Eddie Holland and I, with singular hard luck in picking fishing weather, invaded the Narrows lake before daylight Thursday morning—and spent the next several hours riding out the Arkansas equivalent of a Florida hurricane. No fish and no show.

President Truman wrote a timely chapter in the history of free government and free speech and press yesterday.

Some underlings in the Office of Price Stabilization took it upon themselves to interpret the President's order requiring secrecy on "national security matters" to mean that the files of OPS also could be closed to the public eye.

None of the top men in OPS knew anything about this clerical action until after it was done, so they said—and we believe them.

Mr. Truman issued an immediate order cancelling the OPS "directive."

So the OPS records are open for all the public to see, which is as it ought to be.

The incident reveals man's innate thirst for power—how a clerical assistant automatically uses delegated power to make his own departmental job more important than it really is.

30 More Days for Suspended Officer

North Little Rock, Sept. 28 (AP)—The North Little Rock civil service commission has added another 30 days to the suspension of police Patrolman F.L. (Buddy) Morgan, accused of mistreating a city jail prisoner.

Livestock Show Closes Here Saturday; Revue Acclaimed Best Ever Held in Hope

Tomorrow is the final day for the Third District Livestock Show and despite the weather it will rank as one of the most successful ever held.

Activity today centers on 4-H club judging teams from various counties over the district. Teams in general livestock judging have registered from Montgomery, Hempstead, Polk, Columbia, Ouachita, Hot Springs, Miller, Howard, Sevier, Pike, Lafayette and Garland counties.

And in the dairy division teams are from Miller, Hot Springs, Lafayette, Garland and Hempstead counties.

The weather hasn't been favorable but some 1,500 that saw the opening performance of "Guys and Gals" in the Coliseum last night and glowing reports from the audience boosted ticket sales considerably Friday morning.

"It's a top rate show," was the general comment in downtown Hope this morning.

"The best show of its type to appear here," said Oliver Mills, local typewriter repairman.

"A very fine show and splendid variety," commented Jerry Poe, of Hot Springs, district manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

"To me it was better than the recent Horace Heidt show which played here. Its a show that gets better as it goes along with the last half better than the first," said C. A. Armitage, local attorney.

The revue with a cast of 60 has three more performances—tonight (Friday) at 8 o'clock, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 and Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

Wants U. S. Plants to Have Chance

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Before the federal government makes any deal to buy aluminum from Canada, the same terms should be offered to American companies, says Senator Fulbright (D-Ark).

Fulbright talked with Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson and other officials yesterday in his office on the aluminum situation.

Others attending included Senator McClellan (D-Ark) undersecretary of the Interior Seale Douglas Wright and Henry Blacklock, administrator and deputy administrator of the southwestern power administration, and Louis Reynolds of the Reynolds Metal Co.

Fulbright said he feels that any expansion of the aluminum industry should be in Arkansas, source of most of the country's bauxite, from which aluminum ore is extracted.

The senator said the conference developed the information that:

There isn't much likelihood that any aluminum pollines would be moved from the Pacific northwest because of an electrical power shortage there.

There are two aluminum problems, one that immediate need and second a long range situation.

Fulbright said he told Wilson that the government should offer long-term purchase agreements to U.S. companies before deciding to purchase aluminum from Canada on a long-term basis. He added that Reynolds is prepared to expand in Arkansas if it gets a long-range contract.

Fulbright said he would oppose strenuously any move to subsidize aluminum production in Canada.

Workers Ask for Union Election

Conway, Sept. 28 (AP)—The national labor relations board has been asked by 158 employees of the Ward Body Works, Inc., here to hold an immediate election on unionization of the plant or ask the CIO to give up attempts to organize the workers.

A petition signed by the employees, said that they not wish to further negotiate with the CIO United Auto Workers, which has been trying to organize the plant for several months.

"We request that we be relieved from annoyance by its (UAW) representatives and request the board to either hold an election or an immediate date or call upon the UAW-CIO to withdraw its petition for certification," said the petition.

Two employees, Virgil F. Montgomery and T. J. Carter, said they circulated the petition without the knowledge of David H. Ward, owner. They said only 14 employees declined to sign it.

The union has lost one election at the plant, but the NLRB voided the outcome and set another for Sept. 19. This vote, however, was postponed the unit at the union's request. At the time union representatives declined to say why they had asked the postponement, other than to say that they had had "evidence" to warrant the action.

Much to Be Done About U. S. Defense

By NORMAN CARIGAN (For James Marlow)

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—We're spending billions of dollars to help defend Europe and Asia from Communist attack. What are we doing to defend ourselves in our own backyard—in Latin America?

The diplomats and military men who have charge of this job say we are in pretty good shape, better than most people realize, but there's still a lot to be done.

Traditionally defense of the United States has been based on the Western hemisphere—the United States, Canada and Latin America. Since World War II, this base has been expanded far into Europe and Asia. But the center still remains in this hemisphere.

For this reason the state department and the Pentagon laid plans early in the game to make this hemisphere secure from outside attack. Communist groups and little wars among the Latin American countries themselves that could upset things.

"Of course," one top state department official said "there isn't the danger of a direct Communist attack in Latin America as there is in Europe and Asia."

"The main job here is to keep the hemisphere secure and maintain the flow of raw materials from Latin America that American defense industries vitally need."

Among these strategic materials are oil, iron, copper, lead, manganese, bauxite, quartz, crystals, sugar, tin wood hides and skins and others.

The problem in Latin America is two-fold: Military and Political economic. They work hand-in-hand.

In 1947, the U.S. and the Latin American countries signed a mutual defense treaty whose main feature is this: If one of them is attacked by a country outside the hemisphere the rest will come to the immediate aid of the one under attack.

The area covered by this provision runs from the north to the south pole and takes in Alaska, Greenland and Pearl Harbor.

In case war should break out in Europe, Asia or any other part of the world the American nations agreed to consult on what measures they should take to safeguard the security of the hemisphere.

This pact served as a pattern for the North Atlantic treaty, of which Canada is a member.

Additionally at a foreign ministers conference here last April, the Latin American countries agreed to relieve the U.S. of the burden of defending many strategic seaports and bases in the hemisphere. These defense tasks tied down around 100,000 American soldiers, sailors and airmen in the last war.

The inter-American defense board in which 21 countries are represented, is now working on an up-to-date hemisphere defense plan spelling out what defense job each country would carry out.

These tasks involve protection against Communist sabotage of strategic mines and transportation lines, manning air bases, maintaining air and sea patrols, coast guard duties and the like.

In return the U.S. is helping the Latin Americans financially to carry out these tasks.

The U.S. also helped Argentina, Brazil and Chile to strengthen their navies by knocking down the price on six surplus cruisers. The three countries bought two apiece. Under a similar arrangement other countries are buying some destroyers.

Economic aid also being increased in response to Latin American arguments that can defeat the Communists at home better by relieving economic distress than by building up their armaments.

The export-import bank is continuing to make loans to Latin America for economic development with emphasis now on increasing production of strategic materials. The world bank too is sending missions to many countries to help them plan long range development programs and American businessmen are investing increasing amounts of money in new enterprises.

The Whole Necktie Project Must Be Disheartening to the Average Russian Worker

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—The news from Russia sounds more and more capitalistic. What's going on behind the Iron Curtain these days?

First the Soviet doll industry is warned it has got to produce a greater variety of dolls as little girls don't like all dolls to look alike.

And now the Soviet ministry of light industry has announced a national necktie design contest. Ivan is apparently also tired of wearing the same old drab cravat, and wants to ace up a bit.

The ministry is giving 14 prizes to the winners, and doesn't say whether they are to be in the old days, comrade, a man wouldn't expect a prize for designing the better necktie. He would do it for the glory of the masses. Just what the prizes will be, the ministry doesn't say. But if they should turn out to be the collected speeches of Joseph Stalin, the winners will still be expected to muster expressions of delight.

The contest has one interesting rule. Each necktie must be so designed that it can be manufactured in five different colors. Presumably, these are the five primary Russian colors—carmine, crimson, scarlet, maroon, and red.

The real problem for a Russian artist, however, won't be one of color. It will be how to design a necktie without putting a portrait of Stalin on it. And I predict right now that no Russian artist will get around that problem.

As a matter of fact, it should be fairly easy right now to predict the top winning design. It will have a picture of the Kremlin standing out against a field of red. Over the Kremlin a great full moon will be rising. The moon will have a mischievous smile and the great slow tiger smile of Uncle Joe himself.

This same design is sure to turn up at least 18,000 times during the contest. All the judges will have to do is to pick the 14 best—14, of course, that show the full moon face of Stalin as larger than the Kremlin.

And the judges and designers will share an unusual pride. They will be the first Tovarischs in the history of the U.S.S.R. to achieve a government goal without a five-year plan.

The whole project, however, must be disheartening to the average Russian worker. His problem isn't what necktie to wear. Any necktie will do so long as it isn't hemp. What bothers him is how to raise the rubles to buy a necktie at all.

And if the government announces 14 new prize-winning necktie designs, all featuring a portrait of Stalin, what's he going to do?

He knows his duty in advance. Somehow, even if he has to hock his shoes, he'll have to get together enough rubles to buy all 14 neckties.

And next Christmas he and all the other Russians can hand them back and forth to each other as surprise presents.

Four Counties Form a New Scout District

In a special meeting held at the First Methodist Church yesterday representatives of Hempstead, Howard, Lafayette and Nevada Districts, consolidations was the big question of the day. At present these counties comprise four districts.

Representing Hempstead District were Cliff Franks, Elmer Brown, Bill Wray and Claude Byrd. Howard District was represented by Joe Hargis and Leonard Hughes. Nevada District was represented by Doug Bemis and Lafayette District by John Bagby and A. J. Alsapaw.

Clifford Franks presided at the meeting introducing Max Hatfield, deputy regional executive from Dallas who spoke on the subject of Council and district organization and leadership.

Paul Frick, Scout Executive of Caddo Council talked to the group on the advantages of consolidating the districts. Ralph Johnson, local Field Executive explained the Three Year Program of the Boy Scouts of America which will be launched in 1952. An Open Forum was conducted by Cliff Franks.

After this discussion Elmer Brown moved that the four districts be united as one district. The motion received a second and carried. Chairman Franks appointed a committee to nominate a District Chairman, Vice-Chairman and a District Commissioner for 1952. This committee is to report their nomination at the Annual District Dinner meeting to be held on Nov. 13th.

A coffee and do-nut social period followed the adjournment.

Some Crops Damaged by Cold Snap

By The Associated Press

Corn and late garden vegetables were damaged by frost over north central areas today as an early autumn season cold snap spread over the northern two-thirds of the country.

The extent of the damage was not available immediately.

It was below freezing overnight in parts of Iowa, one of the biggest corn producing states. However, more than 60 per cent of the Iowa corn crop was reported safe from frost damage. The remainder is subject to varying damage, depending on the severity of the cold. It was 31 above at Mason City and 32 at Des Moines.

Temperatures also were below freezing in the Dakotas and parts of Minnesota and Nebraska. About 82 per cent of the corn crop in Minnesota is fully mature or denting, with 18 per cent in the soft dough stage and subject of serious damage.

No killing frost was reported in Wisconsin, Illinois or Indiana.

The cool belt extended from the Rocky mountains to the Appalachian southward to the southern plains and middle Mississippi valley. The lowest readings were in the northern plains. It was 22 above in Bismarck and Dickinson, N. D., and 24 above in Huron and Aberdeen, S. D.

Chicago had the coldest day of the season with a low of 40.

The cold air was expected to extend into the eastern seaboard today, but some warming over the Midwest was expected by tomorrow.

TO CHECK REOTS

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Attorney General McGrath said yesterday he is ordering a federal grand jury investigation of the July race disorders in Cicero, Ill., which developed when a negro family tried to move into a white neighborhood.

The investigation involving an estimated 2,000 persons broke out and was brought under control only after the national guard was called out. The riot wrecked the apartment building involved so badly it is still unoccupied, McGrath was told.

Bradley's Visit to Korea Brings Speculation

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley, head of the high command, sped by air today to the Far East where there has been an ominous step in the Red's air war and where already faltering truce negotiations threaten to bog down finally.

The defense department, in a letter today announcing that the general is leaving Washington Wednesday night, accompanied by Charles Boardman, chief of staff, said that Bradley's visit was to discuss all aspects of the situation with Gen. Matthew Ridgeway, United Nations commander.

"Then the department added its customary announcement that this is one of the periodic visits that the members of the joint chief of staff make to overseas theaters." But the fact remained that this was the first visit by the joint chiefs chairman to the Far East since the Korean war started and that it came at a time of an obviously changing situation.

Bradley was understood to have made tentative plans last April for a visit to the Korean war zone in July but to have shelved those plans after the truce proposal was made for fear his trip might be interpreted as related to the truce. Therefore the decision for him to go now produced speculation that:

1. He might be carrying to the war way instruction from high policy making levels here, of a nature so confidential for telephonic or telegraphic conferences between Washington and the Tokyo headquarters of Bradley's President Truman's military command.

2. With growing realization that Communist armies are making gains in time and may have to be met by a tactical gain, the U. S. military command is preparing to meet them.

3. Or it is quite possible that Bradley wants to equip himself with first-hand information on the general war situation in Korea before going into this fall to Europe for meetings with military chiefs of European nations.

Bradley's aides said the general expected to be away from Washington on the Far Eastern tour for about a week or ten days, then to come back to the capital before setting forth for Greece and Turkey. Those two nations have been proposed for membership in the North Atlantic Treaty organization and American officials are studying the military requirements, weapons, mutual use and other items which would be to confer with U. S. military men.

The Pentagon is giving more attention to reports of the increase in some air activity in Korea, where swarms of jets are, including a new MIG-15, are rising to challenge U. S. superiority.

The option of Paul's contract was exercised by the Reds, who announced that he would be paid $100,000 a year, plus a bonus of $10,000 if the team wins the pennant.

Paul's first move was to trade away many players, including a star pitcher, who was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Oklahoma Brain Specialist Is Insane

OKLAHOMA, Sept. 27 — (AP) — A brilliant brain specialist, described by his wife as "a sick man," was in a hospital for the insane today at her request.

Dr. Harry B. Hewitt, Jr., 41, was committed yesterday to Central State hospital at Norman in a straitjacket.

The action came three weeks after the day after dismissal of first degree manslaughter charges filed against the highly-regarded physician in connection with the death

Aug. 9 of a woman patient. Hewitt was accused of drunkenly administering drugs to Mrs. Allene Shuler for a headache. The doctor, Tex., woman collapsed and died within 24 hours after treatment.

At his preliminary hearing in city court Sept. 5, Hewitt testified Mrs. Shuler died of a stroke. He denied being drunk.

The case was dismissed by Judge J. F. Heavers after five doctors refused to venture a professional opinion as to cause of death.

County Judge J. L. Powell disclosed yesterday Mrs. Hewitt signed a petition for her husband's commitment on the day of Mrs. Shuler's death but asked that he withhold action until after the hearing.

Powell described the doctor as being "in pretty bad shape." He and two psychiatrists examined Hewitt following the Shuler incident but findings were never divulged.

Mrs. Hewitt said only that "Dr. Hewitt is a sick man and has been for some time." She was reluctant to talk about details of the illness.

The couple has four small children. The distinguished looking doctor, heavily veiled and presumably white haired, only recently resumed the $40,000-a-year practice he suspended pending outcome of the case.

Judge Powell said he would be given neuro-psychiatric treatment at the hospital.

State witnesses at the preliminary hearing testified the doctor was either drunk "or had lost his mind" on the day he treated Mrs. Shuler.

A. T. Mikels, friend of the Shuler family, said he was cursed for attempting to help ambulance drivers remove Mrs. Shuler from Hewitt's office to the hospital.

Strikes Idle U. S. Defense Industries

By United Press

Strikes of more than 70,000 workers in aircraft, atomic energy, manufacturing and transportation today cut the nation's defense and domestic production.

Management, labor and government officials, meanwhile, worked to head off additional strikes which could idle more than double this number.

Nearly 100,000 auto workers — 70,000 at Chrysler, 21,000 at Briggs, 40,000 at Ford 14,000 at Studebaker, 8,000 at Hudson and 4,000 at Packard — faced brief layoffs to keep the motor industry within government quotas and because of materials shortages and planned inventory.

The largest strike in the nation was the eight-week-old walkout of 22,000 men at the Caterpillar Tractor

Co. office to the hospital. He testified the physician roared: "What in the hell are you trying to do? They can load her."

Hewitt, on the stand, said he gave Mrs. Shuler two injections when "she collapsed so suddenly the needle bent."

"I then ordered a pint of gin and gave her approximately a dram but it did nothing but run out of her mouth," he told the court.

Warren Man Joins Staff of Murray

Little Rock, Sept. 27 — (AP) — A young Warren, Ark., lawyer has been appointed to Attorney General Ike Murray's staff.

Dowell Anders, assistant director of the Arkansas legislative council, was named by Murray yesterday to succeed Arnold Adams as an assistant attorney general.

Anders, 31, is a graduate of the University of Arkansas law school and practiced law in Warren before joining the legislative council's staff in January, 1919.

He expressed hope that "conscientious editors can find means of circumventing the order." He pointed out that it fails to provide penalties for violators.

Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, called both the new order and the imprisonment of Otis "transcendently important questions."

Frank J. Starnel, A. P. general manager, said the Otis case is being pursued with energetic interest by the state department.

He said many months of delicate negotiations are ahead to win Otis' release, but added:

News Security Plan to Be Protested

San Francisco, Sept. 27 — (AP) — A formal protest is upcoming from America's leading editors against President Truman's new order broadening the blackout on news from government agencies.

Some 250 editors voted unanimously to draft such a protest at yesterday's opening session of the annual meeting of the Associated Press Managing Editors' association.

Action Hot in the 'Last Outpost'

Film star Rhonda Fleming green-eyed and auburn tressed, has often been described as a torrid beauty. During her assignment in Paramount's "The Last Outpost," starting Sunday at the Rialto Theatre, that phrase took on more meaning than ever.

One of the picture's action highlights is a climatic battle scene in which a four-square block replica of a frontier town is put to the torch by Apaches. As the cameras began to roll, the carefully briefed Indians charged past the barricades, shooting flaming arrows into designated parts of the set. Rhonda and other women of the cast were huddled in a "neutral" sector of the town. Suddenly a

DOROTHY DIX

Home of Their Own

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband and I are very happily married and he is wonderful to me. We are living with my in-laws who are the most wonderful parents anyone could ask for, especially since my own parents have passed away. However, I want my own home. My husband tells me to wait until he can give me the kind of home he feels we should have. I'm willing to go to work so we can have the money we need sooner, but he won't let me. We've been married three years and have no children.

DORCAS
Answer: Every young couple should have their own home just as soon as possible. The very essence of marriage is the establishment of a separate domicile in which to raise a new family. This new unit is a complete unit in itself and unless this unit is achieved through its own home family life cannot be fully realized. Even the best in-laws in the world cannot give a young couple the background they should have.

Start Simply
A large part of the pleasure in establishing a new home is in its creation, so even a humble beginning offers an important purpose. It's something to add to, to build up! The period of waiting until we can afford what we want is a barren waste; this time is much better spent in making a home when youth and enthusiasm are fresh and keen.

Often, a husband who has settled himself and wife comfortably with his family is beguiled with a sense of comfort and security that he is loath to relinquish.

Such inertia can be a deadly enemy to happy marriage. The very act of taking marriage vows is also the act of tacitly accepting all the responsibilities thereof. Creating a home and raising a family are components of this responsibility; the longer they are shirked the more surely is trouble invited.

You are completely right in all your assumptions on this point. You should be the proud mistress of your own home, no matter how sparse its furnishings. If your husband doesn't want you to go to work, don't argue the point. Your place is home and it's just as well not to get started on two incomes, one of which is insecure. Establish your home on his earnings, and maintain it with economy and initiative.

brave put too much English on one of his offerings and the flame-tipped arrow imbedded itself in the hem of Miss Fleming's gown. With out wasting an instant, she ripped off the dress and stamped the flames out before harm was done. Unfortunately the realistic action proved too candid and the exciting accident won't be seen in the film. But the "Last Outpost," which co-stars flaming Miss Fleming with rugged Ronald Regan, packs enough premeditated action to make it one of the most rewarding outdoor spectacles of the year.

Dear Miss Dix: I am 17 and just as unhappy as I can be. I work and make my own money but my brothers and sisters always want to know what I buy with it. They are all busy trying to ruin my life, and making me miserable. I have no privacy at all.

DORIS
Answer: Your plaint is a common one with the "youngest of the family". Your brothers and sisters are not trying to make you miserable. They love you dearly, and are simply interested in your activities. If they ignored you completely, you would have a valid complaint and would be really unhappy. I'm sure if you look on the other side of the ledger, you'll see many advantages to this interest from the older members of your family. Aren't they cooperative in lending, giving you anything you need? Don't they lend a willing ear to your confidences and tales of woe on your teenage problems? Doesn't their advice often clear up a difficult situation? Stop regarding your family as natural enemies. They're the best friends you have or ever will have, and they are only trying to knit, now, the ties that will hold you all together for the rest of your lives.

Dear Miss Dix: I have a lady friend to whom I am very devoted. Recently I bought her a very good fountain pen and though I asked her not to let anyone else use it, she did permit a man where she worked to borrow it. We disagreed on the matter and have had a serious quarrel over it. Who is wrong?

M. T.
Answer: If such a trivial matter could cause a serious quarrel between you, I doubt if you could be very devoted to this lady. She would have been guilty of extreme rudeness had she refused the brief loan of her pen to a co-worker. If it was so important to you not to have anyone else use, she should not have taken the pen to the office at all. I really think you owe her an apology, and make sure that all future gifts are of such nature that she will not carry them around with her or be placed in a position where her refusal to lend them will cause embarrassment.

Marine Corps Film Opens Here Sunday

Revolving around the heroic work of U. S. Marine Corps fliers during the last war's Pacific fighting, Howard Hughes' action film "Flying Leathernecks" stars John Wayne and Robert Ryan at the head of a notable cast.

Produced in Technicolor by Edmund Grainger, the dramatic offering presents Wayne as a hard-bitten major commanding an air squadron. Ryan is seen as his executive officer who, though loyal to Wayne personally, resents his rigid insistence on discipline.

This conflict between the two men underlies the exciting early sequences at Guadalcanal, and carries on through the exploits of the squadron at other historic Marine milestones in the rugged drive toward Japan, with the final scenes laid at Okinawa.

Don Taylor as an exuberant young Texan, Janis Carter as Wayne's understanding wife, William Harrigan as a medical officer and Jay C. Flippen as a resourceful sergeant are backed in chief support. Nicholas Ray directed the film, which contains some of the most exciting glimpses of aerial combat ever photographed.

James Edward Grant wrote the screenplay of the RKO Radio picture from the story by Kenneth Gamet. Nicholas Ray directed.
